New Journalism is a style of news writing and journalism, developed in the 1950s and 1960s. Contemporary journalists and writers questioned the "newness" of New Journalism, which changed the face of America during the latter half of the Nineteenth century, and ... Story telling is older than the alphabet and that is what it is all about."

Overview Seminar paper from the year in the subject Communications - Journalism, Journalism Professions, grade: 1,7, University of Hannover Englisch Seminar 10 entries in the bibliography, language: English, abstract: New Journalism caused a sensation in the turbulent 1950s when young American writers - both journalists and novelists - began to blur the lines between fact and fiction. Fiction techniques had not been abandoned by these writers, but they were used sparingly and less flamboyantly. To weave together the stories of people to find the greater narrative thread—and then to painstakingly create a story around this single thread—requires months of reporting and writing. How do newspaper journalists work and write? A power which exchanged guns with flowers and bombs with butterflies. Paul evolved into Sir Paul, last of the music-hall troupers, John became a hunger artist, George went wizard, and Ringo, well, Ringo stayed Ringo, still flashing the peace sign. Raudsepp, E.

Bennett, W. Ideology is seen here as an intellectual process over time, through paper sets out to explore the phenomenon of New Journalism, its techniques, as well as its meaning within the decade of its emergence.
