In the age of the Antonines the Goths were still seated in Prussia. Within a period of about thirty years, Claudius, Aurelian, Probus, Diocletian, and his colleagues triumphed over the foreign and domestic enemies of the state, re-established, with the military discipline, the strength of the frontiers, and deserved the glorious title of Restorers of the Roman world. Constantine also began the building of the great fortified walls, which were expanded and rebuilt in subsequent ages.
